

Have a bite to eat by the bonnie banks

THE Scottish Food and Drink Fortnight began on the September 6 – just in time to bring a wonderful close to a long and strange summer.

What better way to appreciate what we have on our doorstep than by celebrating the amazing local produce we have all around us?

The Lodge on Loch Lomond always indulge their guests in the very best Scottish cuisine, to celebrate the Scottish Food and Drink Fortnight they've decided to re-launch their Morning and Afternoon Teas with an offer and a Scottish twist.

A spokesperson for the hotel said: "Scottish Food and Drink Fortnight has come at the perfect time, we've enjoyed welcoming our guests back throughout the summer's Eat Out To Help Out Scheme and we hope to continue the momentum of encouraging everyone to eat out throughout the Autumn."

"We appreciate what a challenging five months it has been and the perfect treat is a dining out experience to celebrate the Scottish Food and Drink Fortnight."

"We always use local produce in our kitchen so thought why not launch some offers to encourage guests to continue to dine with us throughout Autumn."

The Lodge on Loch Lomond's Tea's are perfect for a wee celebration on any occasion – so you can mark that special anniversary or birthday while still following the coronavirus guidelines.

They are always

Additionally, you can upgrade to a 'Ben Lomond Gin Afternoon Tea' where you will be able to sample a classic style Gin with a delicate twist of Scottish berries.

Enjoy the perfect serve alongside your usual Afternoon Tea Delights, fresh Scottish blackberries and fresh lime, served with Franklin and Sons light tonic.

Morning Teas are a wonderful indulgence served on a dedicated tea stand and offering the likes of tattie scone, bacon, sausage, poached egg, hollandaise skillet, homemade scones with cream and jam, homemade granola with yoghurt and berries, and a choice of organic teas and coffee.

Wonderful Scottish produce.

Scottish Food and Drink Fortnight is an opportunity for us all to appreciate our local larder for the next fortnight and relish the amazing Scottish Cuisine all around us.

To find out more and to book one of these offers visit loch-lomond.co.uk/offer/morning-tea-for-2/ or loch-lomond.co.uk/offer/afternoon-tea-with-fizz-for-2/prepared with the Scottish ingredients and pair spectacularly with the stunning views across Loch Lomond.

The Afternoon Teas are returning with Scottish favourites such as haggis bon bons and sausage rolls, home baked scones served alongside local strawberries and other local delights.

The Afternoon Tea on offer as part of The Scottish Food and Drink Fortnight at Lodge on Loch Lomond (above), the Morning Tea complete with hollandaise skillets (left), and the views from Lodge over the spectacular Loch Lomond.